

How can the construction of a small pavilion tell the redevelopment of a prison (if it can) and therefore of the Italian prison system?

Prison of Milano-Bollate

San Siro neighbourhood

How can the transformation of a street tell the redevelopment project of a neighbourhood (if it can) and therefore of a wider marginal territory?

An empirical exploration into the nature (one of the possibilities) of contemporary design in some realms of complexity. An investigation into how architectural design can equip itself to become one of the key stages of transformations involving fragile territories.
